Farmer Jones: Well, hello farmers, welcome! What a nice surprise to see you all!

Emily: Hi, Farmer Jones! We've been tossing a ball around and think it ended up here at Birdwell Farm.

Farmer Jones: Well, my lawnmower is broken, so it might be hard to find with the grass and weeds so long.

Emily: Oh. Maybe the dogs can sniff it out.

Bailey/Tucker: (sniffing)

Tucker: Bailey, do you see the ball?

Bailey: Nope. All I see is really tall grass and weeds. Clifford, can you see the ball from up there?

Clifford: I can't see the ball, but (big sniff) I can smell all the farm smells. Deeeelightful!

Farmer Jones: I'm hoping my grass and weed problem will be solved soon. See? Goats! They eat almost anything, but especially love to eat long grass and weeds!

Emily: Wow, that's cool! But I don't remember you having goats.

Farmer Jones: I don't! But my friend on the mainland does! And she's letting me borrow them for the day.

Emily: Ooooh, when do they get here?

Farmer Jones: Any minute! Fisherman Charlie is bringing them over on his boat. I was just about to head down to the docks to meet them. Wanna join me?

Emily: Sure! Let's go meet a boat full of goats!

All dogs: (happily barking)

Emily: Goats are able to jump and climb in amazing ways! They provide the world with food, like milks and cheeses. And, like dogs, they are loving, clever and make great pets. Huh! They're even fun yoga partners!
