A STATE OF MIND  Fri., May 20 | 7:30pm

The Mountain West is in the grips of a full blown mental health crisis, and Wyoming is ground zero. Stigma in isolated rural communities prevents people from seeking help, but with addiction, suicide, and PTSD devastating the state, it is time to start a conversation. This documentary series traces patient journeys, weaving expert interviews and man on the street commentary to examine solutions to Wyoming’s mental health crisis.

In this first episode, The Cowboy Code, we examine the stigma around mental health and how it can stop people from getting treatment. Some call it the “cowboy code”: that you are supposed to pull yourself up by your bootstraps, stuff it inside and move on. There are resources available and sometimes the bravest thing you can do is reach out for help. Funded in part by Jack and Carole Nunn and Blue Cross Blue Shield of Wyoming.
