WELL BEINGS WYOMING

Living Life Online: The Impact of Social Media on Youth Mental Health
Tuesday, June 22 at 7pm

In 2021 the threat to the physical and mental well-being of Wyoming’s youth is especially high. COVID-19 and feelings of uncertainty nationwide have increased the stress and sense of social isolation young people experience. This past year has seen an increase of youth – and adults – using more digital platforms for social interaction than ever before.

In partnership with Well Beings, a major public media project created by WETA Washington, D.C., designed to address mental health, WyomingPBS will host a live panel discussion on how social media affects our youth. The conversation will be centered around cyber bullying as well as the effects of social media on self-esteem, anxiety and depression. Mental health professionals and youth will share experiences and resources to help navigate the complex world of social media.

This special program will be broadcast and streamed live online from the Central Wyoming Boys and Girls Club in Casper. The event is free and open to the public. Viewers are also encouraged to watch the live broadcast or stream online at WellBeings.org/wyomingpbs.

Questions can be submitted in advance or during the live event at wellbeings@wyomingpbs.org and will be included along with those collected on social media throughout the livestream.
