Trust National Leaders
With Your Breast Health

Because where you get your mammogram makes a difference.

Trust starts with a dedicated team of Washington University radiologists and radiology technologists affiliated with the internationally recognized Mallinckrodt Institute of Radiology, who specialize in mammography and interpret more than 50,000 exams every year. That’s all they do, all day, everyday. They are mammography experts with the skill, expertise and experience only a national leader can deliver.

In these uncertain times, be certain about your breast health and schedule your mammogram today.

Dear Friends,

With a very different start to this school year, a pandemic to contend with, and federal, state, and local elections around the corner, this is shaping up to be a fall like no other.

Happily, we can still celebrate birthdays and anniversaries! Nine will celebrate its 66th anniversary on September 20. We are honored that you have placed your trust in us all these years and we work hard to keep that trust every day.

We have directed our resources in recent months to bring you voices from our neighbors, virtual screenings, local and national programs that bring context and depth to issues of the day, and on-air classrooms for early learners.

Our cover story in this issue features Teaching in Room 9. Our series of early childhood lessons is our way to assist families, caregivers, teachers, and students in this challenging time. It will continue until at least the end of the year to serve the one in three children in our region without a reliable internet connection or devices.

The health and well-being of the Nine staff is a top priority. We continue to work remotely to do our part to flatten the curve. We’ve recently reorganized our teams to ensure maximum collaboration, clarity, and effectiveness in service to our community. Read about staff changes at ninenet.org/pressroom.

Nine strives every day to bring you the best in public television programming. We have some stellar election-related programs coming up as well as a special on local women who are achieving remarkable things in our community. Local specials and on-the-ground initiatives create a dialog around critical issues in our region with the hope that these conversations will lead to durable changes and help solve seemingly intractable problems, like quality early education for all.

Nine’s early learning initiative provides free, evidence-based educational resources that help educators and caregivers build social and emotional learning, literacy, social studies, and fine performing arts skills for children in underserved families in the St. Louis region.

With your continued support, we can positively impact the future of early education by increasing kindergarten readiness, decreasing the digital divide, increasing the quality of childcare and education, and increasing family connections.

Thanks to our supporters, partners, volunteers, board members, and staff. Nine’s impact is greater because of you.

Best,

Amy Shaw
President and CEO
Nine’s steady drumbeat of early learning initiatives manifests in an on-air classroom with local teacher-led instruction and guided practices without special tools or technology.

During the schooling crisis created by the coronavirus pandemic, Nine was called on by school districts and educators to respond to the needs of early learners. Nine, whose top priority is serving the educational needs of children, jumped into action immediately. We developed an online Educator and Caregiver Toolkit, but the real game-changer was Teaching in Room 9.

Nine’s on-air classroom has the potential to reach every student, family, and educator, making us the region’s largest classroom. Consistency is also important, says Dr. Samantha March, Interim Director of Early Childhood Education, Saint Louis Public Schools. “Teaching in Room 9 has been extremely helpful...because a consistent routine of strong educational content is aired daily,” she says. “Being able to participate in lessons at the same time on the same network daily provides students with the stability that they comfortably had in classrooms.”

“They were instrumental in reaching out to get some of the best and brightest teachers. Nine helps make sure we have the tools to help educators still reach students.”

—Art McCoy, PhD
Superintendent of Schools, Jennings School District
Lauren Williams, who teaches first grade at Windsor C-1 School District in Jefferson County, says being a part of Teaching in Room 9 was important to her because she saw a gap that needed to be filled. “I feel like Teaching in Room 9 gives students a kind of classroom community that they’re missing. It gives them a safe place.” And, it has provided a respite for parents who are stressed with juggling parental and teacher responsibilities. “Kids aren’t just sitting in front of the television; they are getting curriculum and social emotional skills,” she says.

“It’s high-quality instruction that doesn’t require anything extra,” says Maggie Klonsky, former middle school teacher and parent to a 3-year-old and 6-year-old, except maybe paper and pencil. “There are no frills and bells, and yet the teaching is so good. It reminds me of the essence of what good teaching is when you have something that is just so engaging, because it’s about curiosity and investigation,” she says. “Teaching in Room 9 provides relevant content in an interactive manner. On-air educators intentionally use methods to keep students engaged throughout the lesson as if they were in the room together.”

The pandemic has forced children to learn in unconventional ways. Some of the region’s best educators accepted the challenge to record lessons from their homes for broadcast weekday afternoons on Nine PBS. Numerous lessons are available on Nine’s YouTube channel as well. Nine is one of only four public media stations in the country airing locally developed lessons for kids.
Distance learning and online videos can seem impersonal. “The learning has not felt personal, and direct instruction and the guided practice have been missing,” says Klonsky. Teaching in Room 9 gives an authentic experience that feels like you are interacting with a teacher in your family room. “My own children, who do not know the teachers, feel like they’re interacting with them personally,” she says.

Teachers are doing heroic work, and our community can take pride in the educators in Teaching in Room 9. Klonsky believes Nine did a thoughtful job curating exemplary educators who have wonderful skills and relationships with children in their schools and districts.

Art McCoy, PhD, superintendent of schools, Jennings School District, says the Nine team has really stepped up. “They were instrumental in reaching out to get some of the best and brightest teachers. Nine helps make sure we have the tools to help educators still reach students.”

Nine has always believed in the promise of all kids in our region and providing education opportunities so that kids can succeed in school and in life. Nine has a history of innovation in educational television for children, including long-standing partnerships with regional educators. Back in 1952, the St. Louis Board of Education agreed to provide the first year of operational expenses for the fledging KETC educational television station (now Nine Network). Teaching in Room 9 lessons are informed by the Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) and education leaders across the region so that key parts of the public-school curriculum are covered in these broadcasts.

“Teaching in Room 9 provides relevant content in an interactive manner. On-air educators intentionally use methods to keep students engaged throughout the lesson as if they were in the room together.”

—Maggie Klonsky

Former middle school teacher and parent

Teaching in Room 9 is supported by Bank of America, the Dana Brown Charitable Trust, and Emerson in partnership with Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, regional district and education leaders, Washington University Institute for School Partnership, Crabtree Publishing, and St. Louis Black Authors of Children’s Literature.
The goal was to provide high-quality learning resources for children, especially the 1 in 3 children in our region without reliable internet or devices. Since launching Teaching in Room 9 in late April through July 31, 279 episodes have aired featuring lessons in literacy, math, and science. They have been watched 477,905 times by kids ages 2-11. Now that this year’s back-to-school plans have been impacted by COVID-19, Nine will continue Teaching in Room 9 at least through the end of the year.

“I'm continually impressed by Nine’s thoughtfulness around educating the whole child, and also our whole community, and making sure that they're thoughtful about how they're curating their resources and the people that they choose to interact with in different spaces, who they choose to go to for expertise, and how they implement their programs,” says Klonsky.

The public health crisis has created “stressful times of uncertainty and difficulty” for families, says March. “Families have had to navigate through ambiguous factors such as housing, income, food, and obtaining Wi-Fi and devices. Teaching in Room 9 has proven to be a reliable source of education during the pandemic because the easy accessibility nearly eliminates the digital divide families are facing.”

A fourth-grade fan of Teaching in Room 9 wrote to Nine expressing her thanks.

The Human Side of Brain Disease

You have heard us report on BrainWorks before; its history goes back years. What began as an annual TED-style lecture series about advances in neuroscience at Barnes-Jewish Hospital became medical science theater—a new way for the public to experience medicine and the human brain.

The December 2014 theatrical production was produced by Barnes-Jewish Hospital. It featured the play’s authors, Washington University neurosurgeons Dr. Albert H. Kim and Dr. Eric C. Leuthardt.

Nine Network televised segments of this performance for a 2015 special and broadened the reach of BrainWorks across Missouri and Illinois. The broadcast won a 2016 Regional Emmy for Best Informational/Instructional Program.

Now, a new edition of BrainWorks hits the airwaves nationally through American Public Television. Performed in July 2019 at the Loretto-Hilton Center for the Performing Arts, Drs. Albert Kim and Eric Leuthardt teamed up with a cast of professional actors to guide audiences through the general pathology, symptoms, and challenges of four neurological disorders: Alzheimer’s disease, epilepsy, brain tumors, and stroke. Kim and Leuthardt worked with professional playwrights to write these engaging, educational one-act plays based on real-life patient stories.

“Medicine determines if we are healthy or unhealthy; medicine determines if we live or die,” said the play’s director Seth Gordon. “To pair those questions with an art form that deals with human empathy and human behavior is something I’m proud to bring to the stage.”

One of the plays, "Rinse & Repeat," highlights the challenges, dedication and even humor involved in caring for someone with dementia. Another play, "Double Windsor," demonstrates how new therapies and emerging technologies, such as the brain-computer interface, are improving the lives of people who have experienced stroke and other traumatic brain injuries.

The play "X Marks the Spot" focuses on a mid-career professional whose personality undergoes profound changes caused by meningioma—a benign, treatable brain tumor. Finally, the play "Brain Interrupted" walks audiences through the neuroscience of adolescent epilepsy and discusses new brain-mapping technology that eases the suffering of those who live with seizures.

New Sunday Dramas

Six new series, packed with action, love, mystery, betrayal, and, most importantly, drama, premiere this fall.

Van Der Valk on Masterpiece
September 13, 8 pm
Set in Amsterdam, the series follows the work of Commissioner Van der Valk (played by Marc Warren from The Good Wife), a street-smart and unapologetic Dutch detective who navigates the lively and enigmatic city, solving mysterious crimes using astute human observation and inspired detection.

Last Tango in Halifax
Season 4 | September 20, 7 pm
After seven years of marriage, Alan and Celia discover that wedded bliss isn’t always blissful. Clash ing politics, Alan’s new job, and a wild local lad create tension. Caroline gets emotionally embroiled at work. Alan’s brother visits.

Flesh and Blood on Masterpiece
October 4, 8 pm
The lives of three siblings are disrupted when their recently widowed mother declares she’s in love with a new man. The older woman’s budding romance provokes suspicion among her adult children and their inquisitive next-door neighbor, and a detective investigates whether an unfortunate incident was an accident or a heinous crime.

COBRA
October 4, 9 pm
Follow the British Prime Minister and his Cabinet Office Briefing Room A (COBRA) committee, comprised of leading contingency planners and senior politicians, as they navigate the difficulties in overcoming a major national crisis.

The Trouble with Maggie Cole
October 18, 7 pm
See what happens when idle gossip escalates out of control and starts to affect people’s lives. Set in a picturesque fishing village, the series centers on Maggie Cole, the self-appointed oracle of this close-knit community.

Roadkill on Masterpiece
November 1, 8 pm
Ambition knows no bounds, nor does corruption in the political thriller starring Hugh Laurie as a scheming U.K. government minister. Scripted by two-time Academy Award nominee David Hare, Roadkill airs in four, action-packed episodes.

Full episodes of PBS programming will stream for free following each broadcast and be available for two weeks on ninenet.org and the PBS Video App. Following the two weeks, Nine PBS members can view episodes via Passport. Go to ninenet.org/passport to learn more.
Chew in the Lou Live!
What started as Nine’s Facebook group to ponder food trends, restaurants, recipes, and other food-related topics with other St. Louisans, Chew in the Lou has expanded to include a series of free, live, virtual events with chefs and public television personalities.
Preview screenings of local and national food-related content, watch cooking demos, get recipes, and have fun at these virtual events.

Upcoming Schedule

September: To be announced.

October 21: Catherine Neville, host of tasteMAKERS and Feast TV, publisher of Feast magazine

We Are Listening!

Nine Network sends biannual surveys to its email list. In July, more than 1,100 community members responded to the survey, and we are listening. The survey responses help us set priorities, provide input on content creation, and give feedback on our community events.

The results reaffirm that our work is making a difference in our community, but there is room for improvement. Our next steps include finding additional ways to solicit feedback from the community, featuring more experiences from more communities in the region, and ensuring we provide content that is trusted, balanced, and fosters understanding around community priorities.

We deeply appreciate the time survey respondents gave us to share their feedback. The full report is available on ninenet.org/community-survey.

Survey highlights

- 75%
  - of survey respondents said Nine is addressing issues that are important to them.

- 75%
  - of survey respondents indicated they watched programming on Black history and experiences.

- 73%
  - agreed that after watching Nine content, they’re more aware and have a greater understanding of issues facing our region.

- 50%
  - of the respondents watched content about our region’s response to COVID-19.

New Kids’ Special on Race and Racism

PBS KIDS Talk About: Race and Racism special will feature authentic conversations between real children and their parents, and will include content from PBS KIDS series Daniel Tiger’s Neighborhood, Arthur, and Xavier Riddle and the Secret Museum.

The show will feature kids and their parents talking about race- and racial-justice-related topics in an age-appropriate way, such as noticing differences in race, understanding what racism can look like, and embracing the role we all have to play in standing up for ourselves and each other. It offers viewers ideas to build on as they continue these important conversations at home.

The special airs October 10 & 11 at 7:30 am; and October 12 at 7 am and 3 pm on Nine PBS.

New Animated Series Based on Hair Love

The Oscar-winning animated short Hair Love is being turned into a 12-part series for HBO Max. Dave Steward II, Nine’s immediate past board chair, and principal at Lion Forge in St. Louis, who was an executive producer on the film, will also be part of the new series, called Young Love, which will continue the story of the family in Hair Love—father, mother, daughter, and the pet cat.
Halloween and Bullying Prevention Resources

Nine PBS KIDS invites families to participate in Halloween fun by sharing DIY masks, pumpkin stencils, creative costume ideas, and more from the Halloween collection on PBS KIDS for Parents (pbs.org/parents/halloween).

October (Bullying Prevention Month) also is a great time to focus on kindness and other social and emotional learning skills.

Find resources on kindness, empathy, and friendship on pbslearningmedia.org/sel.

New Digital Series on Parenting from Nova

Parenting is full of obstacles that can be hard to navigate—even without a toddler yelling in your face. There’s no instruction manual, which means discerning fact from fiction and reasonable from ridiculous can be maddening.

Join hosts pediatrician Alok Patel and comedian Bethany Van Delft (mother of two) as they dive into the topics nearly all parents face—from pregnancy to poop, fevers to tantrums, and preschool to puberty. Personal, informative, and witty, Parentalogic explores what science has to say about the questions that keep parents up at night, turning trial into triumph.

Watch the episodes on the Parentalogic YouTube channel.

Introducing Elinor Wonders Why

Reaching and engaging kids with fresh content is critical in helping us deliver on our mission to use the power of media to support children’s learning. PBS KIDS’ newest series, Elinor Wonders Why, will join the lineup on Labor Day, Monday, September 7.

Developed for kids ages 3-5, Elinor Wonders Why centers on the adventures of Elinor, the most curious and observant bunny rabbit in Animal Town, who models the foundational practices of science inquiry and engineering design using her amazing powers of observation and her willingness to ask questions.

Elinor Wonders Why encourages children and parents to ask their own questions and experience the joy of discovery and understanding together.

New Nine PBS KIDS schedule

A new schedule for the 24/7 Nine PBS KIDS channel and live stream will take effect September 7, with the launch of Elinor Wonders Why. The schedule will change again on October 5, when Curious George is added to the lineup. See page 25 for the full schedule.
PBS Announces Prime Video Channel for Documentaries

On August 4, PBS Distribution launched a new documentary-focused Prime Video Channel—PBS Documentaries. For 50 years, PBS has been America’s trusted home for documentaries.

The channel is another way for curious viewers to access PBS content outside the PBS Video App. It will include a robust library of critically acclaimed, thought-provoking programs including the entire Ken Burns collection as well as films from Nova, Frontline, American Masters, Nature, American Experience, Independent Lens, POV, and many independent producers.

The channel will feature nearly 1,000 hours of award-winning programming for subscribers to enjoy, including Ken Burns’s landmark series The Civil War and Country Music, Stanley Nelson’s The Black Panthers: Vanguard of the Revolution, and Academy Award-Nominated films like Frontline: For Sama and American Experience: Last Days in Vietnam.

The subscription rate for the PBS Documentaries Prime Video Channel is $3.99/month with an Amazon Prime or Prime Video subscription via Prime Video Channels and is available in the U.S. only. Every purchase helps support public television for all.

The Campaign of Miner Bo

After his 2016 conversation with presidential candidate Hillary Clinton goes viral, unemployed coal miner Bo Copley runs for the Republican nomination for U.S. Senate in West Virginia. But without enough money or experience, he quickly discovers that being a politician is harder than it looks. As his long-shot campaign continues, Copley fights not only to pull off a monumental upset, but also to validate his own sense of self-worth after two years of unemployment.

Holly Holden explores privately owned estates containing distinguished collections of artwork, furniture, and other design elements in Great Estates Scotland.
Beginning September 15, Nine World celebrates Hispanic Heritage Month with 26 films, including some highlighted below, with more on the way in October.

Local, USA: Pandemic in Seattle
Viewers get a behind-the-scenes look at how Seattle and King County public health cared for its most vulnerable in the early days of the COVID-19 pandemic. See how local officials scrambled to stop the spread of the disease, tracked and isolated those who became ill, and educated people about what they could do to help.
Monday, September 7, 8 pm

Doc World: Siqueiros—Walls of Passion
Mexican visual artist David Alfaro Siqueiros (1896–1974) made his name on the world stage: he painted murals in Mexico, the U.S., Cuba, Chile, and Argentina; fought as a soldier in the Mexican Revolution and the Spanish Civil War; and even taught Jackson Pollock the drip technique in his experimental workshop in New York. Siqueiros was a controversy-stirring revolutionary and lifetime activist who lived with theatrical flair and painted on an epic scale.
Sunday, September 20, 9 pm

Doc World: Sands of Silence
As reporter Chelo Alvarez-Stehle documents the transformation of sex-trafficking survivor Virginia Isaias—a Mexican American woman whose past is engulfed in a cycle of sexual exploitation—into an inspiring advocate committed to break that pattern, Chelo undertakes a parallel journey of healing and introspection and sets out to shatter the silence about sexual abuse in her own life.

Driving While Black

The documentary chronicles the history of African Americans on the road from the 1930s to the 1960s, a crucial and transformative period in American racial, cultural, and social history. The film explores the genre of travel literature aimed at helping Black travelers navigate Jim Crow America. At the heart of the film is a powerfully revealing narrative of freedom, mobility, and race in America—one still relevant and resonant today.

Independent Lens: Represent
In Detroit, rural Ohio, and Illinois, three women take on entrenched political systems to reshape local politics. The journeys of female candidates of color from different Midwest communities, support systems, and political parties demonstrate that even in local politics, the stakes are high.

Freedom Summer: American Experience

During the summer of 1964, the nation’s eyes were riveted on Mississippi. Over 10 memorable weeks, more than 700 student volunteers joined with organizers and local African Americans in a historic effort to shatter the foundations of white supremacy in the nation’s most segregated state. The campaign was marked by sustained and deadly violence, including the notorious murders of three civil rights workers, countless beatings, the burning of 35 churches and, the bombing of 70 homes and Freedom Houses. 2014 encore.
