Blossom and Brooklyn were in line outside the The Bookstore of Decades patiently waiting for the store to open. They were so excited to finally go to the famous bookstore that promises the best adventure books in the world. The bookstore was one of the oldest of its kind, they say it dates back to the Stone Age.
As soon as the door opened Blossom and Brooklyn sprinted inside and went directly to the Egyptian section. They found a book titled “Early Egypt” and opened it. They were immediately transported to the beautiful shimmering sands of Cairo staring at the enormous eyes of the sphinx. Blossom and Brooklyn explored the pyramids, saw the mummies, and rode camels in the never ending desert. When they finished exploring Egypt they closed the book and were transported back to the bookstore.
They grabbed another book titled “The Renaissance” and as they opened the book they were transported to England. They were standing inside the most breathtaking stone castle they had ever seen. Blossom and Brooklyn dressed up in the finest gowns and robes and glittered with diamonds and emeralds and wore jeweled crowns and tiaras. They danced in the ballrooms and explored the castle and wandered the green lush garden filled with blooming flowers until they were exhausted. They closed the book and were back at the bookstore.
They immediately grabbed another book and this one was titled “The roaring 50’s.” They opened the book and were transported to the 1950’s in front of a diner named Happy’s. They ate hamburgers, fries, and drank chocolate milkshakes until they were stuffed. They listened to the jukebox and danced the day away! Blossom and Brooklyn closed the book and were immediately transported back to the bookstore.
With only a few hours left they decided they had to go to one place they had been waiting for the entire day. They opened a book titled "Jurassic Period" and as they opened their eyes they saw a luscious green jungle and the most magnificent creatures they have ever seen, dinosaurs! They immediately spotted a Tyrannosaurus walking through the jungle. A Triceratops playing with a Diplodocus and as they looked up into the sky they saw hundreds of Pterodactyls flying over them with their large beautiful wings spread as wide as the eye could see. Blossom and Brooklyn spent the day feeding the Tyrannosaurus and sliding down the tail of the Diplodocus. As it got dark they closed the book and were back at the bookstore.
Blossom and Brooklyn were sad that the day ended so fast, but they had the most memorable and extraordinary day! As they left the bookstore they made plans to visit all new destinations the next time they went back to The Bookstore of Decades.
