2021 proved to be a productive and enriching year. Southern Nevada is a vibrant and resilient community, that I am now grateful to call my home. I am equally honored to work among the talented and dedicated team at Vegas PBS.

We are broadcasters with much to offer beyond the broadcast. In alignment with our mission to educate and empower the individuals and organizations that make up Southern Nevada, we focus our efforts across four core areas of impact: Education, Workforce Development, Technology and Local Productions.

In 2021, we expanded our commitment to Workforce Education. In collaboration with the Juvenile Justice System and the Clark County School District, we piloted a program that brings job readiness to incarcerated youth. We are piloting a second program in collaboration with the Nevada Welfare Department to connect dislocated workers and new job seekers with the opportunity to earn industry-recognized credentials and put them on a path to employment.

As we are committed to creating more quality local content, we are also committed to building a stronger foundation for technology and infrastructure. An upgrade to our master control system, which began last year, will be completed in 2022. This change will give our broadcast signal more capacity and broader reach, and compliments our strategy to invest in technology and provide the community more reliable service.

Throughout this report, you will find more information about the power of public media for public good. Because now more than ever, the world needs quality media we can trust – paired with holistic resources that truly make a difference. In 2022, we will add Vegas PBS WORLD Channel 10.4 to our over-the-air service. This new channel will offer international news, documentaries, and fact-based content covering public affairs, culture, and science. We are very pleased to be adding this content, to complement our diverse programming that is so valued and essential to our community.

With your continued support and a growing membership base, Vegas PBS will continue to have a positive impact on communities we serve for many more years to come.

Thank you for all your support.

The program is made possible by a grant from the Governor's Office of Workforce Innovation.

SUPPORTING INCARCERATED YOUTH

Youth in the juvenile system, who are disproportionately youth of color, often face daunting barriers into careers. Vegas PBS is helping incarcerated youth transition out of the juvenile system and develop the skills to thrive in high-demand careers. This program helps juveniles create resumes and partner with mentors who will give them guidance on soft skills, college or vocational training. This initiative was made possible by a grant from MGM Resorts International, in collaboration with community partners including the Clark County Department of Juvenile Justice Services, Workforce Connections, the Clark County School District, the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) Youth Advocacy Program and Help of Southern Nevada.
