

My name is Regan Rabbit. This morning mommy rabbit told me there was a forest party! On West Blew Ave, all the animals will meet to talk about the yearly talent show. The prizes were a new watch and cozy knitted scarf for first place, your families favorite food for second place, and a pink or blue soft pillow for third. The party was at two-thirty p.m. You had to bring one of your talents. Mommy rabbit was bringing a knitting kit to continue working on a shawl for sissy rabbit.

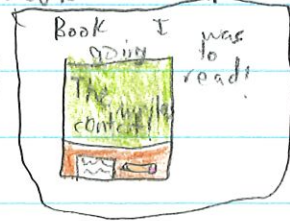

Sissy rabbit is bringing her video game! She is so good, she finished level ten! Daddy rabbit was taking his newest invention, the cloud maker! Babby rabbit was taking his rattle.

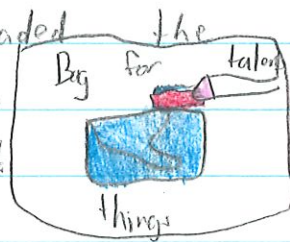

"Regan, sweetie, mommy rabbit said while stirring her tea, 'What are you going to do for the party?' I said, 'mommy rabbit, I don't know!' Mommy rabbit frowned. She suggested, 'go up to your room, you can find something.'"

I went to my room. Books! I could read books for the contest! Mommy rabbit thought it was a bon-bon-tastic idea! I found a picture book and practiced. I practiced until mommy rabbit called, "Regan, Ruby, don't you want your carrot soup? Take a break for a bit." Ruby was sissy rabbit. Sissy and I left our rooms. After lunch, we loaded the talent items in the bags. We walked to the contest. Mayor Lizard was at the mic. Daddy found a picnic table for us to sit at. We all did our talents.

Mayor Lizard announced the winners!

"In first place," mayor lizard said, "is the bears! We loved your dancing!"

The bears got their scarves. Mayor lizard said, "In second place is the...

rabbits! What in the world, you guys were sooo good!" We got our carrots.

Mayor lizard announced, "In third place is the chipmunks! We loved your talents!" The chipmunks got their pillows. I'm sooo looking forward to next year's talent show!
