

September 11, 2020

MontanaPBS Now Live Streaming Primary Channel

MontanaPBS has launched a new live streaming option that allows in-state viewers to watch the primary MTPBS channel live from a variety of smart devices including online, mobile platforms and other OTT devices.

The station has also launched a new section of their website called Ways to Watch, which includes additional details for how to access the MontanaPBS live stream on the device of your choice. Visit montanapbs.org/watch.

“We are regularly exploring and launching new ways for viewers to watch MontanaPBS from around the state to make our programming easy to access no matter how you elect to do so,” said Aaron Pruitt, General Manager at KUSM. “Our tech world is continually evolving and we are eager to adapt to the many ways in which we deliver our local and national programs to viewers around the state.”

Here are ways in which viewers can access the new live stream:

- Montanapbs.org/live
- Pbs.org web player (pbs.org/livestream)
- PBS Video App on Roku
- MontanaPBS mobile app (coming soon!)

Should viewers experience any technical issues, they are encouraged to visit help.pbs.org for a detailed list of FAQs and troubleshooting resources, or email online@montanapbs.org. The MontanaPBS live stream is only available to those watching within the state. For those who try to access the stream outside of Montana, they will be redirected to their local station channel based on geographic location.

CONTACTS

Aaron Pruitt, Director and General Manager, KUSM | aaron@montanapbs.org
Ray Ekness, Director, Broadcast Media Center, KUFM | ray.ekness@mso.umt.edu
Laura Dick, Digital Content & Marketing Manager | laura@montanapbs.org