But changes are coming with the promise of upheavals both personal and professional for Morse. Season 2 Premieres Monday, June 19 – 9pm, and runs through August 7.
What does public media mean to you? Tuning in to your favorite drama? Being mesmerized by a documentary? Staying informed about current events? Providing educational content to kids?

Giving Days is a time to celebrate what #PublicMediaGives to you and to your community. Over these two days, we’re coming together to spread the word about all that public media means! We need your help to keep SOPBS growing and flourishing.

MONDAY, MAY 1 – DAY 1: ADVOCATE
Stations, donors and all fans of public media, spend this day sharing with their friends, family, neighbors and colleagues why public media is so important to them! Let everyone know what #PublicMediaGives you and your community. We’re sure you’ll have plenty to say on your own, but we will also provide messaging and images for you to share on your social media pages.

TUESDAY, MAY 2 – DAY 2: GIVE
Now that you have spread the word about the values of public media and inspired the people in your life, it is time to take action and encourage others to do the same! Send folks to the website for SOPBS and encourage them to click that “donate” button today!

As a current member of SOPBS, what makes your contribution on Public Media Giving Days so special?
On May 1 and 2, you have the power to make an even bigger impact than usual. While contributing financially is critical every day of the year, this is a unique opportunity to share your why and encourage your community to join you in supporting SOPBS. As an existing member, you are our biggest cheerleader — and we need your help to spread the word!

Do your Facebook friends know that we’re a trusted source for in-depth local, national, and international news? Have your coworkers heard about the latest plot twist? Have they seen the new MARIE ANTOINETTE drama? Do they know that with an SOPBS membership, they can access SOPBS Passport to watch all episodes of both programs before they air? Clue them in!

If you are not able to donate right now, can you still be involved?
Absolutely! We understand that not everyone is able to make a financial donation. You can participate in any way you see fit — give us a shout-out on social media, text your friends about donating, encourage friends and family to watch or listen to your favorite SOPBS programs. Keep an eye on our Facebook and Instagram accounts ahead of the big event for exciting updates, unique ways to get involved and interesting things to share.

Thanks for helping SOPBS grow and flourish, and for inspiring others to support us as well, especially on these two vital days of fundraising!

SAM NOW

Monday, May 8 – 10pm

Filmed over 25 years, this is a deeply personal story about two film-obsessed brothers and their quest to find their missing mom. In the documentary, Reed Harkness captures his half brother Sam Harkness from age 11 through 36 as their once-average, middle-class Seattle family finds themselves heartbroken and unsure of what to do when his mother suddenly leaves them. The result is a mosaic of love, longing, and loss, as well as an attempt to overcome generational trauma.

SILENT BEAUTY

Monday, May 15 – 10pm

For 24 years, journalist and filmmaker Jasmin Mara López suffered in silence as she endured sexual abuse by her grandfather, a Baptist minister. After disclosing her abuse to family members, López discovers she is not alone. In this poignant film, the New Orleans-based director aims to end the cycle by confronting her family’s burdened history and addressing our society’s default to silence.
See the world through the eyes of Nam June Paik, the father of video art and the one who coined the term, “electronic superhighway” to describe the future of telecommunications.

Nam June Paik (1932–2006), internationally recognized as the “Father of Video Art,” created a large body of work including video sculptures, installations, performances, videotapes and television productions. He had a global presence and influence, and his innovative art and visionary ideas continue to inspire a new generation of artists.

Born in 1932 in Seoul, Korea, to a wealthy industrial family, Paik and his family fled Korea in 1950 at the outset of the Korean War, first to Hong Kong, then to Japan. Paik graduated from the University of Tokyo in 1956, and then traveled to Germany to pursue his interest in avant-garde music, composition and performance. There he met John Cage and George Maciunas, and became a member of the neo-dada Fluxus movement. In 1963, Paik had his legendary one-artist exhibition at the Galerie Parnass in Wuppertal, Germany, that featured his prepared television sets, which radically altered the look and content of television.

After immigrating to the United States in 1964, he settled in New York City, where he expanded his engagement with video and television, and had exhibitions of his work at the New School, Galerie Bonino and the Howard Wise Gallery. In 1965, Paik was one of the first artists to use a portable video camcorder.

In 1969, he worked with the Japanese engineer Shuya Abe to construct an early video-synthesizer that allowed him to combine and manipulate images from different sources, and the Paik-Abe video synthesizer transformed electronic moving-image making.

“Without the military help of the Black freedmen, the war against the South could not have been won,” said President Abraham Lincoln in 1865, at the end of the American Civil War. In 1866, the United States military formed two all-Black cavalry units and four all-Black infantry regiments, which were authorized by the Army Reorganization Act. Those servicemen, veterans of the Civil War, would come to be known as the Buffalo Soldiers.

Their veteran status positioned them as skilled and experienced fighters fully prepared not only to fight in war, but also to lead other soldiers in battle. But their competence was often dismissed by white commanders who were just as committed to ideas of white supremacy as they were to maintaining the union.

In the documentary, filmmaker Dru Holley explores the contradictory role played by Black soldiers throughout American history, with particular emphasis on the settling of the American West, and dispossessing Indigenous people of their land.

“You have to remember that although Blacks were now newly freed, their real condition in the American South had not changed that much,” said Darrell Millner, emeritus professor of Black studies at Portland State University.

Joining the army promised young Black men a road map to financial success and social status that was difficult to come by for formerly enslaved people. But even that promise was rarely kept. Buffalo Soldiers were often paid unfair wages and denied honors they had earned. They were also deliberately omitted from the historical narrative Americans told themselves.

The eight-part cooking competition is back for second helpings with a new season of home cooks from across the country. Hosted by Alejandra Ramos with judges Leah Cohen, Tiffany Derry and Graham Elliot, the show is a fun and uplifting competition celebrating the multiculturalism that makes American food unique and iconic. Season 2 introduces viewers to a new group of inventive home cooks who compete to wow the judges with their beloved signature dishes.

“The first season of THE GREAT AMERICAN RECIPE was a multiplatform success, attracting younger and more diverse audiences to PBS,” said Zara Frankel, Senior Director of Programming and Development, General Audience Programming at PBS. “Viewers rooted for and connected with our wonderful home cooks from around the country, and we are delighted to launch a new season of this fan favorite with fresh faces, new recipes and heartwarming stories.”

The series blends food, family and fun, highlighting the amazing variety of tastes and traditions from across the U.S. while capturing the roots of America's diverse cuisine. From family favorites passed down through generations to internationally influenced recipes that are becoming mainstays of American cuisine, the series mixes camaraderie with competition, revealing rich personal stories and the inspiration behind the contestants' favorite recipes. As with the first season, one of the winner’s dishes will grace the cover of The Great American Recipe Cookbook, Season 2, an official series cookbook, which will feature recipes from the contestants, the host and the judges.

May June 2023 | 29
David M. Rubenstein, the series’ host and executive producer, explores American history through a close examination of iconic national symbols: indelible artifacts, places, and archetypes. Rubenstein is on location and in conversation with historical thinkers, community members, and subject matter experts. Together, they dive deeply into each symbol’s history and how its meaning has changed over time, using these symbols as a gateway to understanding America’s past and present.

The series spotlights how these icons were created and how the perception of them formed and changed. These manifestations of our cultural history are sometimes highly contested as different groups invest them with distinct meanings. The symbols that endure speak to what a society values and how people see themselves and they help us to contextualize a nation’s shared past in the present moment.

“I’ve long been struck by the strength of American symbols while saddened by how little we know about them,” said Rubenstein. “Our goal with this series was to explore the history and meaning of these iconic symbols and to better understand the bigger issues and societal currents they reveal.”

Be sure to catch more of the series this summer as David Rubenstein explores the Statue of Liberty (July 12), the American Bald Eagle (July 19), Stone Mountain (July 26), and the Golden Gate Bridge (August 2). With a membership, you can also stream an episode about Fenway Park (originally broadcast on April 26) on Passport.
