

Complaints of the Constitution

Directions: Read the following letter written by Thomas Jefferson to James Madison. In it, Jefferson discusses his frustrations with the Constitution. Answer the questions that follow.

Omission- left out or excluded

Monopolies- controlling the supply or trade of a good or service

Habeas Corpus- requiring a person under arrest be brought before a judge or court

Magistrate- a civil officer

To James Madison

Paris Dec. 20. 1787.

Dear Sir,

I like much the general idea of framing a government which should go on of itself peaceably, without needing continual recurrence to the state legislatures. I like the organization of the government into Legislative, Judiciary and Executive. I like the power given the Legislature to levy taxes.... am much pleased too with the substitution of the method of voting by persons, instead of that of voting by states.

I will now add what I do not like. First the omission of a bill of rights providing clearly and without the aid of freedom of religion, freedom of the press, protection against standing armies, restriction against monopolies, the lack of habeas corpus laws, and trials by jury in all matters of fact triable by the laws of the land.... Let me add that a bill of rights is what the people are entitled to against every government on earth, general or particular, and what no just government should refuse, or rest on inference.

The second feature I dislike, and greatly dislike, is that abandonment in every instance of the necessity of rotation in office, and most particularly in the case of the President. Experience concurs with reason in concluding that the first magistrate will always be re-elected if the constitution permits it. He is then an officer for life....

I have thus told you freely what I like and dislike: merely as a matter of curiosity for I know your own judgment has been formed on all these points after having heard every thing which could be urged on them. I own I am not a friend to a very energetic government. It is always oppressive.

Dear Sir your affectionate friend & servant,

Th: Jefferson

Now that you have learned about the discussions surrounding the Constitution and the addition of the Bill of Rights, write a response to Thomas Jefferson. As James Madison, explain to Thomas Jefferson why his concerns about the Constitution are not valid.

To Thomas Jefferson

Dear Sir,

While I know you have had some concerns about the Constitution, I assure you not to worry because...
