

JEALOUS

DOG

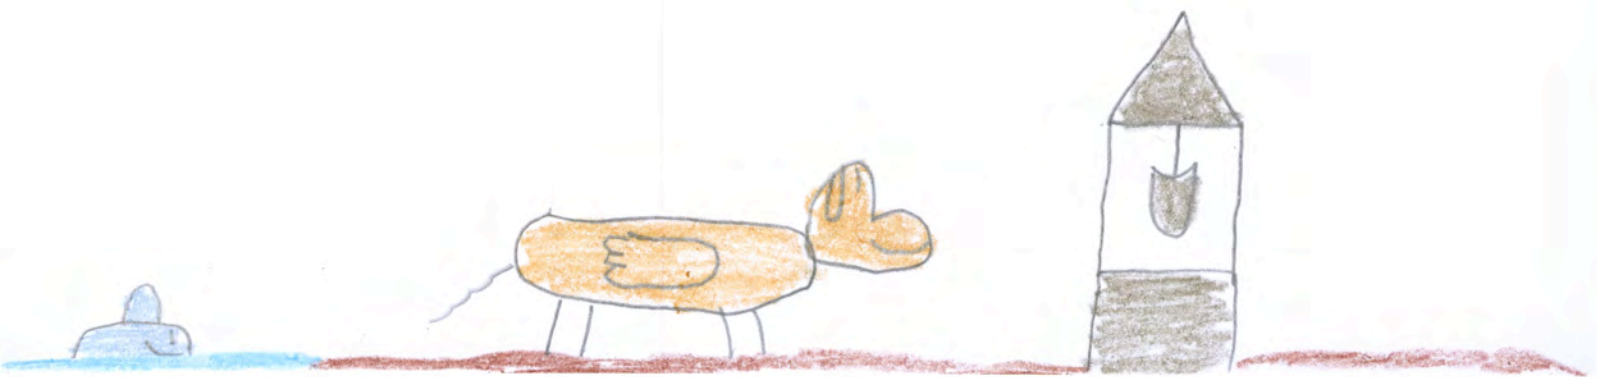

By Ben Kohrman

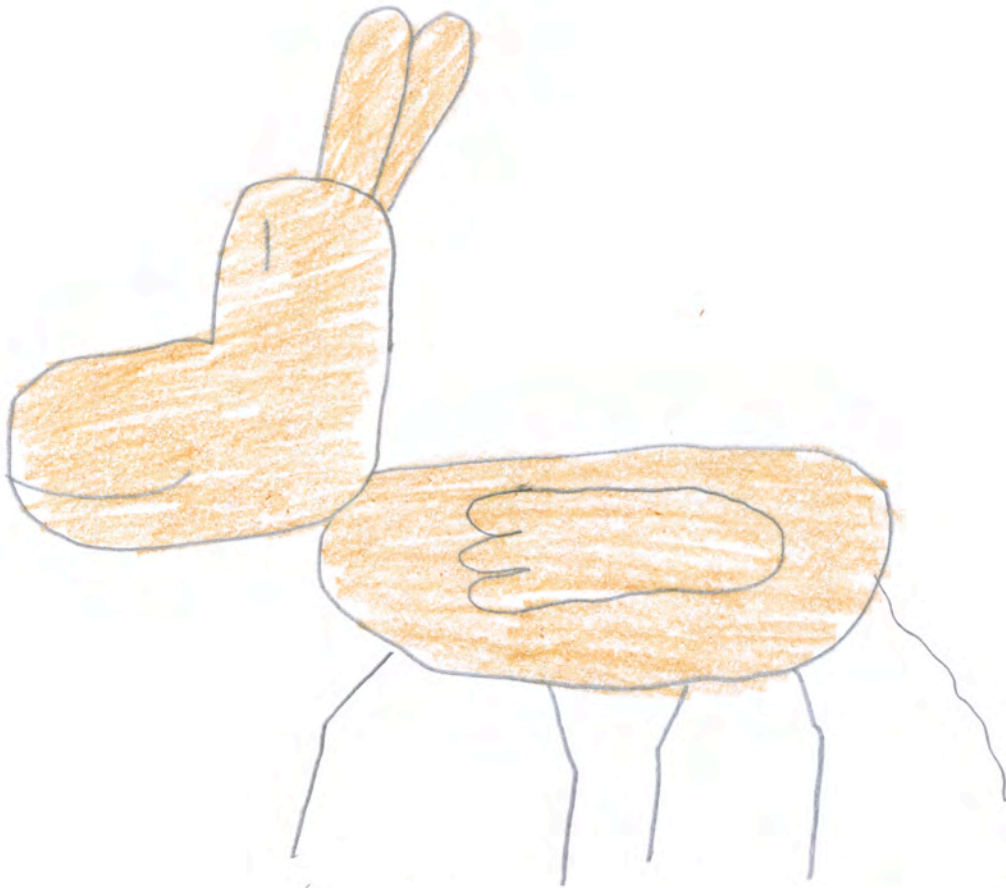

Once upon a time, there was a dog named Fred. He wanted to swim, jump, have a big furry tail, and be able to make cool noises through his nose.

Fred walked over to the pond and saw fish swimming in the water. He thought to himself, "I want to swim too." So the next day, he went to the wishing well and wished for flippers. They slowly started to grow.

Then he saw Micky the rabbit hop by.
Fred thought to himself, "I want to jump high too." So he went back to the well and wished to jump high.

As Fred was going home he saw Squirell and Bob the elephant pass by. He wanted a bushy tail and a trunk too.

The next day he went back to the well
and wished for a bushy tail and a trunk.
They grew and grew. "Now I look good." He thought

The next day he went to show his friends
what he looked like. None of them knew him.
He was not happy.

The next day he went back to the wishing well for the last time and wished he was a normal dog again. It worked. "I guess a dog is what I am supposed to be." He happily said.
