Lily Space Veterinarian!

Adventure in the Rain Wood Rain Forest

By Sophie Cornwell
It was a beautiful day on planet Plutini, the two suns were high in the sky. Lily space vet and her assistant Gus had just left the office with their equipment and were heading to see their first patient of the day.

“Where are we headed to this time?” Lily asked her helper Gus. They were riding in the space cruiser vet van.

“We're headed to the jungle town of Rain Wood. There is a 7-foot-tall bunny with a large scrape on its leg,” said Gus.

“Let me grab my bag” exclaimed Lily. She grabbed her bag and hopped out of the van.

“It's that one” said Gus pointing at a big blue house next to a field of hearty farty's. Hearty Farty's are heart shaped plants that grow on top of each other and when full grown emit a cloud of a sweet-smelling gas.
They walked up to the door and knocked. A little girl opened the door.

“Hi, I’m Lily space veterinarian. Are you Kate?” Lily asked.

“Yes”, said the little girl. “My bunny is outside; her name is Blueberry. She cut herself on the fence today.” replied the little girl.

“Ok I’ll grab my step stool and you bring Blueberry out.” said Lily.

Blueberry was a 7-foot tall, blue Plutini rabbit. She had three eyes, four ears, and glowed-in-the-dark.
They went to the field and Lily got on her step stool, “Oh I see the problem she needs this bandaged.” Lily got into her bag and got out the bandages and pins. She wrapped up the cut and pinned the bandage together. Lily got down and said, “She’ll be fine just check on her leg every few days.” “Do you have a step stool to reach the bandage?”

“Yes, I do thank you” said Kate.

Back in the van Gus asked, “So what was wrong”.

“The 7-foot-tall rabbit’s leg needed to be bandaged” said Lily.

They drove for a few minutes then got out. “It’s that one” said Gus pointing at a green house on a hill covered with puppy, cat, and bunny plants. They are stems with little animal heads on top that require feeding just like animals. They walked up to the door and knocked.
A little boy opened the door. He was holding a small purple dog with silky fur, three eyes, two tails, two tongues, and four ears.
“Hi, I’m Lily space veterinarian, are you Alex” said Lily.

“Yes, said the little boy, and this is Violet. She broke her leg today while we were playing”.

“Ok well she needs a cast so let’s sit down”. She got her stuff out of her bag and put the cast on the puppy. “Here you go” she said handing Alex Violet.

“Thanks,” said Alex “I’m so glad she’s ok”.

“Just keep the cast on for a few months and she’ll be fine” said Lily, “I’ll be back to take of the cast when it heals”.

“Ok, bye” said Alex. Lily and Gus walked back to the van.

“That’s two cured pets in a day” said Lily. Putting two check marks on a white board.

“Yep”, said Gus “we did a good job”.

“Time to go home” said Lily.